1 CO's Address

Greetings crew!

An ok week, much slower than last. I'd give us a C as a grade for this week, primarily given the number of unexcused crew. There are a few things I'd like to remind us all of as we start this next plot. We all want things to flow smoothly during the plot, especially since we have a tendency to slow things down during plots. Let's make this one different!

First off, duty comes first. I know that we all love building our characters, especially those of us on Zetari, but in order for this to be a Trek SIM that works smoothly (like a well written episode), it's important for us to write a variety of logs, both duty and personal. We have mastered the personal logs and at times have a tendency to lean to far to that end of the spectrum. Please remember, one of the rules is 'one quality duty log per week'. That means a log where your character is clearly working and doing a task related to his or her position. It's great to write logs that develop relationships with other crewmembers off duty, that is fun and exciting both to write and read, however it is extremely difficult for the plot to progress if you're not writing your character on duty. There is going to be a lot for each department to do this week and next, that is duty specific, so please ensure you're trying your best to play your collar color ;)

Secondly, joint logging is fun, but best when you write something of note when it's your turn to post. Essentially, it's important to write more than one sentence, consistently, as your contribution. There have been a handful of log this past week (and before, but this is SR 201, so let's focus on week 201 ;) ) where there is clearly a discrepancy in the log. One character will have two paragraphs of description and script and the response from another is one sentence. I know that at times a short reply is the best, but when one person is doing a majority of the work the fun quickly dissipates. Seeing as we are here to have fun, try your best to add lines of substance in your joint logs!

Finally, I'm a broken record, but I can't seem to make this resonate with some of you ::eyes the 00 peeps::, if you can't log - submit a log excusal (on site) or email zetari-command@ucip.org and let us know. It's as simple as that and will save you from our wrath. Ask Bo, the wrath of Juls is far worse than you imagine.

Other than that, welcome to week # 201 and the beginning of Dramatis Personae!
Juls

Commodore Julianna Kaye

2 Week in Review

2.1 Plot Summary

Prepared by Tam Tam!

The backlog of this weeks sees Sven and Tamara reports to Juls' office, right after coming back from the Jenkata Nebula, and report about the deployment of Project Watchtower.

Isha wakes up in Zeke's quarters again. After the initial disorientated and embarrassed moment, they start speaking about Isha's past, something quite uncharacteristic for the Security Officer. Zeke discovers about her past attempt at suicide, and, as they discuss, he can't help but touch her scars, then her noseridges. However, it seems that it triggers something within them, and they ends up kissing and making passionate love.

Up in her office, Juls, after debating with Cobaka, gets to work, and she calls the Cortez, who is on a mission of exploration. Captain Blokpoel reports to Juls about the mission, which seems to be going fine, and Juls informs the Captain, with understatement, that things may be brewing, which leaves the Vulcan Captain a bit puzzled.

In the Infirmary, Aella is surprised by the unexpected arrival of her brother Retsu. The siblings quickly sums up what happened since last time they have seen each other face to face.

Edwards is down in the Brig, and talk with Flint about his recent behavior and the attack on an NCO. Flint explains the reason, and Edwards advises him to seek counseling quickly, and that he's lucky the NCO isn't pressing charges.

((Follow up of the saga started last week)) Chloe wakes up with Adam watching over her. The two lovers get some breakfast and decides to be lazy, and watch an action film while they have breakfast. Later on, they decide to go to the Holodeck, to dance and drink til their hearts content without being seen by other crewmembers. They have much fun dancing and drinking, and Chloe is quite drunk when they make it back to her quarters.

Meanwhile, Ashley visits a patient in the Infirmary, to try to find if the pain he's feeling is psychic in origin or not. After a bit of discussion, which doesn't really gos smoothly, she diagnoses a psychogenic pain, though, she can't tell the reason.

Matthias gets the report as soon as Ashley sends it, and he send her a 'thank you' message, before going to do some chores in the Infirmary, making sure that stuff is ready for use and up to date.

Tom, Aella and Aella's brother Retsu meets in Kaelyn's room. Kaelyn's quite happy to see Retsu, then Tom informs her that she'll be discharged from the Infirmary soon, and Retsu and Aella offers to take her home until she is fully healed and back at full strength.

Later that day, while Adam is away, Chloe gets the unexpected visit from Gavyn, who has come to ask her what can be done about his bad leg. Chloe promises to try, if Gavyn promises to work with her, which he agrees. Looks like his relationship with Mel did him some good.

At the same time, a big bunch of Medical staff rendezvous at the new bowling arena of the station. Charlotte, Tom, Aella and Amelia gathers there, following Tanna, who seems to know the game, while the others are quite puzzled about it. But, it hold promises for much fun anyway.

The next morning, Zeke wakes up with Isha sleeping at his sides. After a moment of awe watching Isha sleep, Zeke gets up and follows his morning routine, which includes replicating breakfast and sharing it with his sister via the com. It gets awkward when he answer the call while naked, and the breakfast is cut abruptly when eh refuses to explain his behavior to his sister, much to the amusement of Isha.

The Inner Docking Ring is host of a short-lived yelling contest, when the crew of the Black Star is being quarantined because they carry some potentially sick animals, and the feline captain voices his disagreement. However, Security seems to be ready to make sue of their weapons, and, so, the crew backs off to their ship.

On the Promenade, our beloved CO grabs a delicious treat at the Sweetest Thing, before heading back to her office. She read a few padds, until she arrives to a very strange one. Only her quick reflexes allow her to survive the explosion of the strange padd. Someone tried to assassinate her. She wakes up on the Infirmary, under care of Chloe, who quickly informs her of the injuries she sustained, and tell her that the injuries have been healed.

A moment later, Tamara is informed, via the intercom of the explosion and the assassination attempt on the Commodore's life. Leaving the briefing she was giving, she heads toward the scene, while giving orders to reroute power and turbolifts away from the damaged section.

Ross gets the info too, and he quickly leaves the Sensor Control Room for Main Ops.

Edwards shows up very soon after, and he starts interrogating the CO about the whole incident. Juls gives explains everything, and Edwards is already thinking about what to do, and how to use the leads she gave him. At the same time, he decides to increase security around the Command Team, and has Juls and Triss followed by a security detail.

Later on, it is Triss who visits Juls. He inquires about how she feels, if Edwards have some leads yet, and Juls suggests that Tam might help with shifts in the pit. She also informs him that Security will be increased in all strategic areas, which includes the immediate surroundings of Juls and Triss. Yet, as they discuss together, Juls can't help but feel that something odd in Triss behavior.

Still in the Infirmary, Triss, Tanna and Aella meets in Tanna's office, and the young Aella is officially promoted to Chief Medical Officer, much to her surprise and happiness. However the poor girl ends up with a box of padds to review, one which Tanna is more than happy to give to her.

Coming back to her quarters, Aella finds Kayelin there, while her brother left to report for duty. The two old friends discuss about the past, how they lost contact and such, and after a bit of a bitter words, they seem to make it up and remain friends.

Once again, Kassi and Mel meets in the Holodeck with their respective puppies. It is still hard for Kassi to think of Mel and Gavyn together, but she manages to keep her feelings in check, mostly. They speaks about Gavyn, once again, and how it will take time for Kassi to accept that Mel is in love with the mad scientist, but they are still friends.

Isha is at the Bajoran Temple, trying to meditate and seeking help from the Prophets. Zeke tracks her down there, but he hesitates to step in until Isha invites him to. The two discusses about what just happened, and Zeke informs him about a bond that takes place between Romulans when they are really in love, and that such must have happened between them, probably helped because of Isha's psychic abilities.

2.2 Quotable Quotations

Quotes by the amazing Kelso! (He does private shows too;) Send suggestions to zetari-command@ucip.org

Groaning, Aella leant forward and hit her head on the desk in front of her – and a couple more times just to remind her just how screwed she was. —Garan

Hmm. . . I'm thinking that may be counter-productive.

Ashley asked, “Ok, if you want to stop, just say so. Ok, what's the scariest thing you can think of?” —Russell

Counselors! (Sorry, couldn't resist)

The Commodore walked steadily through the Promenade, heading towards one of the multiple turbolifts. Fortunately, the uniform informed the crowd to part, allowing her to focus on her work while she walked.

—Kaye

Like Moses through the Red Sea carrying his staff, so is our Commodore through the promenade carrying her pastry.

Acknowledging the hail, the sleepy XO was found leaning against one side of the command console in Main Operations . . . Although she couldn't see him, he stood up in a more . . . vertical position. "Triss here, I'm on my way."

—Triss

What is this, preschool?

3 Personnel Information

NOTE: To be eligible to receive awards and promotions requires a fairly complete biography on the website. This includes no empty fields and a history that include recent events and happenings in the characters life.

3.1 Promotions

+ SD 240906.23 Matthias Larynski

Previous Rank: Cadet

Promoted To: Ensign

Last Promotion: –

Comments: Matt joined Zetari a month ago and has been a very consistent member of the medical department.

In his first few weeks he has managed to write a variety of duty and personal logs, in addition to starting a small duty driven subplot with a fellow crewmember. He has easily earned the promotion from Cadet to Ensign and I look forward to watching him grow into his role on Zetari.

+ SD 240906.23 Charlotte Kuykendall

Previous Rank: Ensign

Promoted To: Lieutenant jg

Last Promotion: –

Comments: Charlotte has been with us almost three months and in that time she has logged with excitement and consistency. She writes both duty and personal logs and is working on developing a well-rounded character. She is on her way to becoming a great officer.
